Brewster's
MillionsCopyright, 1904, By GEORGE BARR M'UTCHEON
of Herbert S. Stone & Company (RICHARD GREAVES)

While swift hands were lowering the boats for the chase others were carrying firearms on deck. The search light threw its mighty white arm out over the water before many seconds had passed, and eager eyes were looking for the boats of the pillagers. The Arabs had reckoned without the searchlight. Their fierce exultation died suddenly when the mysterious streak of light shot into the sky and then swept down upon the sea, hunting them out of the darkness like a great and relentless eye.

The Plitter's boats were in the water and manned by sturdy oarsmen before the glad cry went up that the robbers had been discovered. They were so near the yacht that it was evident the dusky tribesmen were poor oarsmen. In the clear light from the ship's deck they could be seen paddling wildly, their white robes fluttering as though inspired by fear. There were four boats, all of them crowded to the gunwales.

"Keep the light on them, captain!" shouted Monty from below. "Try to pick out the boat that has Miss Gray on board. Pull away, boys! This means a hundred dollars to every one of you--yes, a thousand if we have to fight for her!"

"Kill every one of them, Mr. Brewster!" roared the captain, who had become behind a boat when he became aware of the presence of women on deck.

Three boats shot away from the side of the yacht, Brewster and Joe Bragdon in the first, both armed with rifles. "Let's take a shot at 'em!" cried a sailor who stood in the stern with his finger on a trigger.

"Don't do that! We don't know what boat holds Peggy," commanded Brewster. "Keep cool, boys, and be ready to scrap if we have to." He was half mad with fear and anxiety, and he was determined to exterminate the band of robbers if harm came to the girl in their power.

"She's in the second boat!" came the cry from the yacht, and the searchlight was kept on that particular object almost to the exclusion of the others. But Captain Perry saw the wisdom of keeping all of them clearly located in order to prevent trickery.

Brewster's brawny sailor boys came up like greyhounds, cheering as they dashed among the boats of the fugitives. Three or four shots were fired into the air by the zealous American lads, and there were loud cries from the Arabs as they veered off in panic-stricken. Monty's boat was now in the path of light and not far behind the one which held Peggy. He was standing in the bow.

"Take care of the others!" he called back to his followers. "We'll go after the leaders."

The response from behind was a cheer, a half dozen shots and some of the most joyous profanity that ever fell from the lips of American sailors, mined with shrieks from the boats they were to "take care of."

"Stop! Brewster shouted to the Arabs. "Stop, or you'll kill every one of you!" His last was not more than fifty feet from the boats.

Suddenly a tall, white, dead figure arose in the middle of the Egyptian craft, and a moment later the pursuers saw Peggy's form raised by its hand.

She was instantly caught by one of his long arms, and the dead was lifted high above her head. A gleaming knife was held in the upraised hand.

"Fire on us if you dare!" came the French from the Arab. "Dog of an American, she shall die if you come near her!"

CHAPTER XXV.

BREWSTER'S heart almost ceased beating, and every vestige of color left his face. Clear and distinct in the light from the yacht the Arab and his burden were outlined against the black screen beyond. There was no mistaking the earnestness of the threat, nor could the witnesses doubt the ghastly intention of the long, cruel knife that gleamed on high. Peggy's body served as a shield for that of her captor. Brewster and Bragdon recognized the man as one of Mohammed's principal retainers, a fierce looking fellow who had attracted more than usual attention on the day of the sheik's visit.

"For God's sake, don't kill her!" cried Brewster in agonized tones. There was a diabolical grin on the face of the Arab, who was about to shout back some defiant taunt when the unexpected happened.

The sharp crack of a gun sounded in the stern of Brewster's boat, and an unerring bullet sped straight for the big Arab's forehead. It crashed between his eyes and death must have been instantaneous. The knife flew from his hand, his body straightened and then collapsed, toppling over, not among the oarsmen, but across the gunwale of the craft. Before a hand could be lifted to prevent, the dead Arab and the girl were plunged into the sea.

A cry of horror went up from the Americans and something surprising like a shout of triumph from the abductors. Even as Brewster poised for the spring into the water a flying form shot past him and into the sea with a resounding splash. The man that fired the shot had reckoned cleverly, and he was carrying out the final details of an inspired plan. The Arab's position as he stood in the boat was such as to warrant the sailor's belief that he could fall no other way than forward, and that meant over the side of the boat. With all this clearly in mind, he had shot straight and true and was on his way to the water almost as the two toppled overboard.

Monty Brewster was in the water an instant later, striking out for the spot where they had disappeared, a little to the left of the course in which his boat was running. There was a rattle of firearms, with curses and cheers, but he paid no heed to these sounds. He was a length or two behind the sailor, praying with all his soul that one or the other might succeed in reaching the white robes that still kept the surface of the water. It's crew was "backing water" and straining every muscle to bring the boat around sharp for the rescue.

The sailor's powerful strokes brought him to the spot first, but not in time to catch the disappearing white robes. Just as he reached out an arm to grasp the form of the girl she went down. He did not hesitate a second, but followed. Peggy had fallen from the dead Arab's embrace, and that worthy already was at the bottom of the sea. She was half conscious when the shot came, but the plunge into the cold water revived her. Her struggles were enough to keep her up for a few moments, but not long enough for the swimmers to reach her side. She felt herself going down and down, strangling, smothering, dying; then something viselike clutched her arm, and she had the sensation of being jerked upward violently.

The sailor fought his way to the surface with the girl, and Brewster was at his side in an instant. Together they supported her until one of the boats came up, and they were drawn over the side to safety. By this time the abductors had scattered like sheep without a leader, and as there was no further object in pursuing them the little American fleet put back for the yacht in great haste. Peggy was quite conscious when carried aboard by the triumphant Brewster. The words he whispered to her as she lay in the bottom of the boat were enough to give her life.

The excitement on board the Plitter was boundless. Fear gave way to joy, and where despair had for a moment reigned supreme there was now the most insane delight. Peggy was bundled below and into her berth. Dr. Lotless attending her. Brewster and the sailor were carried to a place where hot toddies were to be had before blankets. "You have returned the favor, Conroy," said Brewster fervently as he leaned across the heads of his bearers to shake hands with the sailor who was sharing the honors with him. Conroy was grinning from ear to ear as he sat perched on the shoulders of his shipmates. "I was luckier than I thought in saving your life that day."

"It wasn't anything, Mr. Brewster," said young Conroy. "I saw a chance to drop the big nigger, and then it was up to me to get her out of the water."

"You took a big risk, Conroy, but you made good with it. If it had not been for you, my boy, they might have got away with Miss Gray."

"Don't mention it, Mr. Brewster; it was nothing to do," protested Conroy in confusion. "I'd do anything in the world for you and for her."

"What is the adage about casting your bread upon the water and getting it back again?" asked Rip Van Winkle of Joe Bragdon as they jubilantly followed the procession below.

There was no more sleep on board that night. In fact, the sun was not long in showing himself after the rescuers returned to the vessel. The daring attempt of Mohammed's emissaries was discussed without restraint, and every sailor had a story to tell of the pursuit and rescue. The event furnished conversation food for days and days among both the seamen and the passengers. Dan DeMille blamed himself relentlessly for sleeping through it all and moped for hours because he had lost a magnificent chance to "do something." The next morning he proposed to hunt for the sheik and offered to lead an assault in person. An investigation was made, and government officials tried to call Mohammed to account, but he had fled to the desert and the search was fruitless.

Brewster refused to accept a share of the glory of Peggy's rescue, pushing Conroy forward as the real hero. But the sailor insisted that he could not have succeeded without help—that he was completely exhausted when Monty came to the rescue. Peggy found it hard to thank him gently while her heart was so dangerously near the riot point, and her words of gratitude sounded pitifully weak and insufficient.

"It would have been the same had anybody else gone to her rescue," he mused dejectedly. "She cares for me with the devotion of a sister, and that's all. Peggy, Peggy," he moaned, "if you could only love me, I'd—I'd—oh, well, there's no use thinking about it! She will love me one else, of course, and—and be happy too. If she'd appear only one-tenth as grateful to me as Conroy I'd be satisfied. He had the luck to be first, that's all, but God knows I tried to do it."

Mrs. Dan DeMille was keen enough to see how the land lay, and she at once tried to set matters straight. She was far too clever to push her campaign ruthlessly, but laid her foundations and then built cunningly and securely with the most substantial material that came to hand from day to day. Her subjects were taking themselves too deeply to heart to appreciate interference on the part of an outsider, and Mrs. Dan was wise in the whims of love.

Peggy was not herself for several days after her experience, and the whole party felt a distinct relief when the yacht finally left the harbor and steamed off to the west. A cablegram that came the day before may have had something to do with Brewster's depression, but he was not the sort to confess it. It was from Swearingen Jones of Butte, Mont., and there was something sinister in the laconic admonition. It read:

Brewster, U. S. Consulate, Alexandria: Have a good time while good times last. JONES.

His brain was almost bursting with the hopes and fears and uncertainties that crowded it far beyond its ordinary capacity. It had come to the point, it seemed to him, when the brains of a dozen men at least were required to operate the affairs that were surging into his alone. The mere fact that the end of his year was less than two months off and that there was more or less uncertainty as to the character of the end was sufficient cause for worry, but the new trouble was infinitely harder to endure. When he sat down to think over his financial enterprises his mind treacherously wandered off to

to catch the disappearing white robes. Just as he reached out an arm to grasp the form of the girl she went down. He did not hesitate a second, but followed. Peggy had fallen from the dead Arab's embrace, and that worthy already was at the bottom of the sea. She was half conscious when the shot came, but the plunge into the cold water revived her. Her struggles were enough to keep her up for a few moments, but not long enough for the swimmers to reach her side. She felt herself going down and down, strangling, smothering, dying; then something viselike clutched her arm, and she had the sensation of being jerked upward violently.

The dead Arab and the girl were plunged into the sea.

confidence that had carried him to Barbara Drew with a declaration of love—to the stunning, worldly Barbara—and smiled bitterly when he saw how base the two allies were deserting him in this hour of love for Peggy Gray. For some reason he had felt sure of Barbara; for another reason he saw no chance with Peggy. She was not the same sort; she was different. She was—well, she was Peggy.

Occasionally his reflections assumed the importance of calculations. His cruise was sure to cost $200,000, a princely sum, but not enough. Swearingen Jones and his cablegram did not awe him to a great extent. The spending of the million had become a mania with him now, and he had no regard for consequences. His one desire, aside from Peggy, was to increase the cost of the cruise. They were leaving Gibraltar when a new idea came into his troubled head.

He decided to change his plans and sail for the North Cape, thereby adding more than $30,000 to his credit.

WARNING TO OTHERS

Pythians Get a Tip Not to Be Too Zealous in Elections.

Indianapolis, Aug. 5.—A six-months' suspension from the Pythian order is the penalty for a too-zealous disposition to persuade other Pythians to one's way of thinking at the time of a lodge election, according to a decision of the supreme tribunal of the Knights of Pythias, now in session in this city. The decision was in the case of Baer and McBride vs. Haab, appealed from the Minnesota grand tribunal of the order.

Haab was charged with an enthusiasm in electioneering for a friend who was a candidate for office in a St. Paul subordinate lodge, that was so exuberant as to verge on coercion and bribery. The case was carried to the grand tribunal of Minnesota, which dismissed the charge. On appeal the supreme tribunal has now reversed the decision of the Minnesota Pythian court, has found Haab guilty as charged, and has ordered his suspension from the lodge for six months.

According to L. P. McCormack, state labor commissioner, there is very little friction in Indiana just now between labor and capital. He said: "There have been fewer strikes, less depression and a better industrial condition in the state during the past year than for a decade. There has not been a strike of any consequence all summer. In only one instance has a strike resulted from an attempt to effect an increase of wages, and that was a minor affair. In a number of cases voluntary raises of wages have been given employees. This is almost unprecedented in summer. Prices are good, workmen are busy and happy, prosperity exists on every hand, and what more could we in Indiana ask?"

Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health, is preparing to wage war on those school authorities of Indiana who have ignored the law regulating the manner of heating schoolhouses. The law specifies that the buildings shall not be heated by direct radiation, inasmuch as this means the heating of the same air over and over, thereby denying ventilation and engendering diseases. Complaints have reached Dr. Hurty's office from Seelyville and Knightstown. "The board will correct this manner of heating," said Secretary Hurty, "if it has to appeal to the courts for assistance."

TRAINS DELAYED

Effect of Telegraphers' Strike Is Now Being Felt.

St. Paul, Aug. 5.—Although conditions approaching a tie-up have not yet developed as a result of the strike of the telegraphers on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads, increasingly serious delays are being caused in the moving of traffic. The effect of the strike is becoming manifest in the movement of passenger trains. Information given out at the union station in St. Paul shows that trains have been coming in at all hours. What the outcome of the freight situation will be is problematical. The operators are aware of the difficulty with which freight is being moved and predict that when the heavy movement of crops begins presently, the tie-up will be realized.

Negotiations for the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance have progressed to a point where little remains to be done beyond signing a new instrument.

MACEDONIAN CRY

"Come Over and Help Us"
Says New Orleans to Uncle Sam.

CITY THROWS UP HANDS

It Is Felt That Government's Health
Forces Will Be Better Able to Cope With Fever Situation.

With a View to Securing Full Public Confidence Stricken City Takes Important Action.

New Orleans, Aug. 5.—New cases yesterday, 43; total cases to date, 475; deaths yesterday, 5; total deaths to date, 89; new foci, 10; total subfoci, 76.

Washington, Aug. 5.—President Roosevelt has forwarded to Surgeon General Wyman of the public health and marine hospital service, a telegram from Governor Blanchard of Louisiana, requesting that the United States government take control of the yellow fever situation in New Orleans. The president directed the surgeon general to take every step in his power to meet the situation in New Orleans.

SURGEON GENERAL WYMAN.

New Orleans, Aug. 5.—With no intention of admitting the fever situation to be beyond control, but in the hope of reviving confidence here and elsewhere in the South, official and business interests have decided to send a request to President Roosevelt to have the United States government assume full charge of the struggle now in progress to wipe out yellow fever from New Orleans and Louisiana. The public approves the action taken. Expectation is that within the next two days Surgeon General Wyman, with all the resources of the government, will be enlisted actively in the campaign.

The action taken was the result of a meeting at the cotton exchange. President A. Brittin presided. There were present Mayor Behrman, Chairman Janvier of the citizens' committee, President Souther of the state board of health, President Kohne of the city board of health, representatives of each of the exchanges and commercial bodies, Surgeon White of the marine hospital service, and a number of representative citizens.

All of these participated in the discussion. It was the consensus of opinion that if the government control was resolved upon there would be an immediate restoration of confidence throughout Louisiana and the other states in the South where there has been criticism of the local authorities for not sooner making public the existence of the fever. It was also the belief of those present that General Wyman would be able to send a force of physicians to New Orleans thoroughly equipped for the handling of the yellow fever situation, because of their experience in Cuba, Mexico and at different points in the United States, and that the government would have the facilities for enforcing a scientific campaign not possessed by the local authorities. When the local officers first took charge of the situation it was confidently hoped that the fever could be stamped out with a reasonable delay, but the progress has not been as expected, and so frightened have become the people in the South over the increase in the number of cases that New Orleans is threatened with a serious paralysis of her trade by reason of the radical quarantines that are now being instituted.

Immediately after the meeting a telegram signed by the mayor and other interests represented was addressed to Governor Blanchard, telling him of the action taken.

The announcement of the action taken at first created some alarm in the city growing out of the fear that it meant that the situation had grown entirely beyond control, but that alarm was allayed when it became known that the authorities had acted simply from the belief that prompt action now in turning over the direction of affairs to the marine hospital service, in whom there is supreme confidence here, would almost certainly avert an epidemic.

At a conference at the city hall it

ONE LUNG

May be gone and yet the remaining lung will be amply sufficient to sustain a vigorous vitality. As a general thing few people make more use of both lungs than is equivalent to a healthy use of one lung.

These facts are all in the favor of the man or woman with weak lungs, even when disease has a strong grip on them.

Many a person living in health to-day has the lungs marked by the healed scars of disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes weak lungs strong. It cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, bleeding lungs and other conditions, which, if neglected or unskillfully treated, find a fatal termination in consumption.

"I had been troubled with lung disease and pleurisy for a number of years and the trouble had almost become chronic," writes A. S. Elam, of Howe, Ia. "I had several kinds of medicine from different physicians without much benefit. At last wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce and got his advice, and began using his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have used twenty-five bottles. When I commenced taking it I had no appetite, my system was completely run-down, had no ambition to do anything. Now I feel better than I did before I got sick. Have a good appetite and am able to do my work. I sincerely recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to all who are afflicted as I was."

Those who suffer from chronic diseases are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery."

GOVERNOR HERRICK, of Ohio, like Governor Hanly has declared war on pool-selling at horse races and says that there will be no more of it in Ohio if he can prevent it. Gambling in Ohio is unlawful just as it is in Indiana.

GENERAL James R. Carnahan's funeral was attended by friends from all parts of Indiana. Members of the Uniform Rank, K. of P., of which he was at the head, were there in large numbers and attended the services in full uniform. He was a man of splendid parts and his life was one of large usefulness. He had a host of admiring friends.

Not alone does the Uniform Rank of the Knights of Pythias owe James R. Carnahan a debt of gratitude. The whole country is the debtor of the able and famous man who passed away in Indianapolis Thursday. For he was the embodiment of that splendid spirit of efficient and successful organization which gives strength to any movement, and is an element of power in the nation.—Commercial Tribune.

The yellow fever situation at New Orleans has been very serious for several days. For awhile there was some petty clashing of authority about the control of the situation but finally the authorities realized that all the help possible was needed. Finally President Roosevelt has been appealed to and with his characteristic promptness acted at once. The people of the south have cause to be alarmed.

From Knox county comes a report that a band of gypsies kidnapped a little girl but she managed to get away from them after they had her five miles from home. The state seems to be overrun with this class of shiftless people. There are numerous reports of their pilfering and impudence. They make themselves a nuisance wherever they stop. The quicker they are forced out of Indiana the better. Have nothing to do with them.

Subject to Heavy Fine.

Seymour "hello girls" have found that there are errors in the new laws for them. An act of the recent legislature says:

"Whoever being an operator, clerk, messenger or employee of any telephone company discloses the contents of any dispatch or message sent or received from any office of such company, or any conversation or communication between the persons over the line of any such telephone company, except to a court of justice, or to a person authorized to know the same, shall, on conviction, be fined not less than $10 or more than $500."

New Pythian Rules.

Charles E. Shively, Supreme Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of the world, has made the following ruling: No Pythian lodge has a right under the supreme condition and statutes to lay a corner stone on Sunday; no person has a right to transact any business of any kind except that pertaining to the order while the lodge is in session; a member of the Supreme or of a grand tribunal must not hold any other office within the order.

Union Meeting.

There will be a union temperance meeting at the First Baptist church tomorrow evening at 7:30. Mrs. Elizabeth T. Stanley, of Liberty, vice president and state lecturer of the Indiana W. C. T. U. will be the speaker of the evening. Mrs. Stanley is said to be a gifted speaker. Of her the Indianapolis News says she is "one of the most gifted and magnetic speakers of the state."

WEED CUTTING.

Every Man Should Take Pride In His Property.

Every year the city council has a round about weed cutting. Frequently the owners of vacant lots permit the weeds to grow on them until they are unsightly and injurious to health. Complaint is made to the council and the board of health. Orders go forth but too frequently they are not obeyed. Here and there over the city it is observed that rank weeds have been permitted to grow along the gutters, spreading out towards the sidewalk on one side and the street on the other. This too, is unsightly and besides is condemned by all health authorities. Property owners should not consent to these conditions. In other words every man should see that the weeds on and along side the property owned by him are cut. When his neighbor keeps his property neat and clean pride should prompt him to do likewise. It should not be necessary for him to be told to do so.

In the matter of keeping a city neat and clean and in the best possible sanitary condition every property owner and every resident of that city has a duty to perform. Not a part of them but all of them. They should act promptly, then there would be no ground for complaint.

DIED.

She was well known in this city and has many friends here principally among her schoolmates of the St. Ambrose church, of which she was a member. She is a sister of Mrs. Will Hollenbeck, who lives on Jeffersonville avenue. Funeral and burial at New Albany Sunday.

CARNIVAL QUEEN.

Several Nominations Have Been Made and Voting Will Begin.

There have been handed to the committee some fifteen or twenty names of young ladies from this city who are to be candidates for queen of the carnival. The voting boxes will be placed this afternoon in F. H. Gates' Candy Store, C. E. Abel's Grocery and Cox's Pharmacy. Any citizen of the city of Seymour will have the right to go to any one of these voting places and cast a ballot for any reputable single lady and her name will be carried in the list as an applicant for the queen of the carnival. There will be no discrimination in this contest between the rich and poor, but the present is to be awarded to a young lady who secures the highest number of votes between Monday, August 7, and September 4th. On Monday evening this paper will publish the names of all the candidates for the first time with the number of votes that have been cast for each of them from Saturday evening until 12 o'clock Monday noon. This will give the public a chance to cast a ballot for any candidate they may desire.

Ireland.
Ireland was originally Irene, or the Western Isle. It was called the Emerald Isle because of the brilliant color of its verdure, which throughout the year is a lively green.

To the Point.
The brief Australian law, "No person shall smoke opium," is so concise and explicit that even the most vernacular justice of the peace can hardly mistake its meaning.

Dierck's Face.
Paysonfield's face was a puzzle even to his intimates. It was impossible, by watching it, to gain any insight into his feelings or emotions.

Our Oldest Belfry.
The oldest belfry in America is the seven century old fire tree, eight feet thick, that forms the spire of St. Peter's church, Tacoma, which is used for the bell of the church.

Paul's Old Coat.
The old sheepskin cloak mentioned by Paul probably cost him about $1, as that was the common price at that time.

The Great Freeze.
The year 1886 is remembered throughout western Massachusetts as the year of the great freeze. It came on the night of May 30 and was a fatal setback to what had been up to that time a very forward spring. Hundreds of acres of corn and potatoes had to be plowed under and replanted.

Greek Hats.
The Greeks, when traveling, wore hats in winter of cloth or felt; in summer, of plaited straw, with broad brims.

Germany's High Bridge.
The highest bridge in Germany is that crossing the river Wupper, at Mungsten. The bridge is 392 feet above the water level of the river. It was completed in 1897, and is one of the most magnificent railroad bridges in Europe.

Bicho-de-Mar.
A species of sea slug found in the waters of the orient greatly resembles a cucumber in size and color. Under the name of bicho-de-mar it forms an article of export, much relished by the Chinese.

Tokyo.
Tokyo is 100 years older than St. Petersburg.

An Odd Custom.
In New England, 100 years ago, it was by no means uncommon for people to provide their coffins long before their death and keep them in their houses, where they could see them every day.

The Sea Otter.
The most valuable fur in the world is that of the sea otter. This animal is now almost extinct.

Leprosy.
Smallpox, or variola, was not known to the Romans before the sixth century. Leprosy is as different from it as palsy is from St. Vitus' dance. What is this awful disease? Something endemic, chronic, malignant, with cutaneous lesion. It is a scabious affliction of a dreadful character, attacking nations negligent of cleanliness and the decencies of life. All that France and England gained by engaging in the crusades was leprosy, and of all that they took leprosy was the only thing that remained with them. In olden times every man laboring under the disease was imprisoned like a thief or a robber. Moth holes and the mildew on walls were believed to be the effects of leprosy.—New York Press.

Mending Matters.
Miss—Did any one call while I was out?
New Girl—Yes, mum. Mrs. Wayupp called.
"Did she seem disappointed when you said I was not at home?"
"Well, she did look a little queer, but I told her she needn't get mad about it, 'cause it was really true this time."
—New York Weekly.

Proficiency.
He was a cornet soloist, indeed, but by no means witless.
"Musical proficiency," said he, "is a matter of give and take."
"Eh? Give and take what?"
"Pains," he said, illustrating his notion by running a few scales.—Puck.

Do you know all about paints?

Then you know
Lucas Paints
(Tinted Gloss)

If you paint houses without them, there are surely some things about them you ought to know. They are economical in first cost and last cost. The prices are right and the paints cover, look and wear to beat any other paint ever made. There are other reasons too.

TO SAVE THE TREES

San Jose Scale Has Invaded Indiana to Damaging Extent.

A REMEDY IS GIVEN

Indianapolis Park Department Offers a Preparation That Will Kill the Deadly Scale.

Capital City's Parks Are Being Devastated—Many Parts of State Affected.

Indianapolis, Aug. 5.—The San Jose scale continues to appear in the trees in all parts of the city, while reports from various parts of the state speak of a like invasion generally throughout Indiana. The pest is working havoc among the forest beauties of Indianapolis. Although it has been present for a number of years, there is a marked increase this year. The park department has been trying to educate tree owners on precautions to be taken. Several thousand cards have been distributed by the department. They bear the following directions:

"Dissolve two pounds of whale oil soap in one gallon of boiling water; to this add one gallon of kerosene while boiling (but always away from the fire). With a pump or some swift agitator, pump the mixture back into itself while hot. This emulsifies at once. It is to be diluted with six gallons of water while hot. It is ready for use as a spray after getting cold. If it is to be used as a paint with a brush, the quantity of kerosene should be two quarts and only enough water to make the mixture have the consistency of soft soap."

SHIPPERS COMPLAIN

Railway Commission Investigating Charges of Rate Discrimination.

Indianapolis, Aug. 5.—Admission was made before the Indiana railroad commission by J. Q. VanWinkle, general superintendent of the Big Four Railroad company, that all firms depending upon his company for switching were not charged the same rates for the service. The commissioners took this to mean that discrimination is being shown by the Big Four and that it is offering rebates in its charges. Preliminary inquiry was made by the commissioners into the rates of the Big Four for switching on petition of ten firms using the Big Four switches on the Chicago division of the road between Sixteenth and Twenty-second streets. It was charged that the rate of $4 a car was excessive, being twice that charged by other companies. The evidence taken showed that some firms paid $4 a car, others paid $2, and still others nothing at all. Superintendent VanWinkle explained that the difference was probably due to "special arrangements." The commissioners took the matter under consideration.

Plucky Woman Routs Burglars.
Muncie, Ind., Aug. 5.—When Mrs. Wesley White, acting as nurse for a sick woman, heard noises in the night and on going to the head of the stairs had a light from a dark lantern flashed in her face, she fired twice at the burglar with a revolver and then pursued him through a window, still shooting. Of the two bullets fired in the house only one was found, and it is thought the other struck the intruder.

Was Too Foxy for Them.
Muncie, Ind., Aug. 5.—While William Ladington was passing a dark spot he was held up by two highwaymen, who, after searching his pockets, freed him. Seeing the men ahead of him, and fearing they meant to do him harm, Ladington dropped his watch and money in the road before reaching them. The robbers obtained nothing, and Ladington afterward went back and picked up his property.

He Slept on the Track.
Rockville, Ind., Aug. 5.—Alonzo Stutler of Jessups, this county, twenty-two years old, was struck by the south-bound passenger train at Guon and died soon after being brought here. It is reported he told two persons that he had had only five hours' sleep in five days. He was a brakeman on a freight train and was sent to flag the passenger train. He sat down on the track and went to sleep.

Silver-Plated Pennies.
Wabash, Ind., Aug. 5.—Bogus dimes are afloat at several towns in this part of the state. A clever fellow has been plating ordinary copper cents with a silver wash and has passed them in large numbers on business men, showing the money at night.

Took Their Time to It.
Muncie, Ind., Aug. 5.—Burglars broke into the general store of John Ball in the heart of Oakville, and robbed it of a quantity of goods, driving leisurely away with the stolen articles in a wagon.

Enforcing Cigarette Law.
Hope, Ind., Aug. 5.—Irwin Cox, marshal at Hope, has arrested Carl Daimbert, a druggist, on the charge of smoking cigarettes. This is the first arrest made at this place for violating the cigarette law.

Regimental Reunions and Forty Second Anniversary Battle Chickamauga.

Chattanooga, September 17-21, 1905.

On September 18, 1905, will occur the forty-second anniversary of the Battle of Chickamauga. It is proposed to celebrate this memorable event with a reunion of the various regiments that participated in this memorable battle, and, in addition, to hold at the same time, a grand reunion of all the regiments that participated in the various battles fought around Chattanooga. This reunion will be held at Chickamauga National Park, September 18, 19 and 20, and the present indications are that it will be the largest and most notable gathering ever held in the south. On the above dates, the remnants from the armies of twelve states, comprising the following: Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and Kentucky, will assemble, many for the first time since they marched from its blood-stained fields, forty-two years ago.

Grand and glorious will be the meeting and all who attend will have cause to rejoice. The lowest rate ever secured has been given, the entire public for this occasion, one cent per mile, short line distance.

Here is one of the great opportunities for the education of the youth. Don't fail to take your children and show them historic Chattanooga, with all its historical connections. It is the opportunity of a lifetime. Go and see the old war generals and other officers point out the places of interest on the battlefield; let them show you and explain, in person, the markers erected on the battlefield showing the positions of the opposing armies at the time of battle. It will not be long until noise will be left to do this noble work; take this opportunity and don't let it escape you. It is worth six months in the school room to any student.

It will be many years, if ever again, that such an opportunity will present itself. See that your tickets read via the Louisville & Nashville R. R., the Battledore Route. Call on your nearest railroad agent for rates and advertising matter pertaining to the reunion or write nearest representative of the Louisville & Nashville R. R.

PAROLE SYSTEM.

Satisfactory To Prison Authorities Of Indiana.

The parole system of Indiana is considered highly satisfactory, the records of the Indiana Reformatory during the use of the parole system showing a decided improvement. In the last eight years no prisoner has been released from the institution until employment was found for him and many paroled men are holding excellent positions and receiving good salaries.

According to the semi-annual report of Supt. W. H. Whittaker, since the indeterminate law went into effect in April, 1897, 1,871 inmates of the Reformatory have been paroled and of that number 1,414 have complied with the conditions of their release, about 24 per cent being delinquent in reporting.

Of the delinquents, 213 are at large and 243 have been returned to the Reformatory.

During the past eight years 982 paroled men have received their final discharges, 41 have died and in 159 cases sentence has expired. Two hundred and thirty-three are still reporting to the officials.

Prison authorities all over the country advocate an indeterminate sentence and the parole system such as exist in Indiana.

No Danger Here.

Dr. Hurty says there is no danger of yellow fever in this state, and that the talk of quarantining Indiana against Southerners is absurd.

"It is not probable that the Health Board of this State will take any such action he said. Personally, I do not think it would be justifiable. I do not doubt but that yellow fever has existed among the Italians of New Orleans for sometime. Just now the health authorities are stirring it up, and that makes the situation seem worse than it probably is. So far as I know, the authorities in this state do not feel any apprehension."

No Capital Stock.

Defenders of the private bank will find small argument for their claims in one of the statements sent to the office of Joseph E. Stubbs, chief of the bureau of statistics, in response to a request for certain bank data.

The blank filled out by this particular private bank, the name of which would not be given out, shows that the bank has no capital stock, no bonds or collateral for the protection of its depositors, and pays no taxes, except on the $900 worth of furniture and fixtures, the tax last year being only $8.10. The loans and discounts were given in at $6, 198.29. The amount of the deposits was not given.

Stray Bullet.

Miss Lucy Hazelrigg, of Greensburg who frequently visits in this city, while taking the Kentucky river excursion trip this week with some friends, received a stray bullet in the wrist while she was standing on the deck of the steamer near High Bridge. The bullet was fired from the bank but by whom is not known. It was embedded in the flesh but as the party was on the return trip no effort was made to extract it until she reached home Friday morning.

Hanly and Bryan.

Governor Hanly and William Jennings Bryan were the big attractions at the opening day of the Chautauqua at New Albany Friday. They were greeted by about 10,000 people. "Patriotism and Peace" was the theme of the Governor's address. He said obedience to law is an element of patriotism. He reiterated his well known position on law enforcement and said his oath of office was not a mere formality. He referred to his opposition to public officers riding on free railroad passes and said that if the people stood by him until the end of his term the acceptance of a railroad pass would become so odious that no honest public officer would accept one.

Mr. Bryan gave his best lecture, "The Prince of Peace," which was received with unbounded enthusiasm.

Way to Kill a Town.

A town that never has anything to do in a public way, is on the way to the cemetery. Any citizen who will do nothing for his town furnishes the coffin. The man who is so selfish as to have no time from business to give to city affairs, is making the shroud. The man who is always howling about the city tax, which is the only maintenance of the town, is driving the hearse. The man who is always pulling back from any enterprise throws bouquets on the grave. The man who is so stingy and selfish as to be howling hard times, preaches the funeral and sings the doxology, and thus the town lies buried free from all sorrow and care.—Ex.
